"«La democrazia populista - mediatica - è il totalitarismo compatibile con la democrazia. L'irriducibilità degli intellettuali alle masse è l'elemento, la funzione di non sutura del campo mentale totalitario»... La forma di democrazia che viviamo oggi è quella mediatica, una forma mai esistita prima, e alla quale occorre applicare una critica inedita, quindi lontana dagli sviluppi teorici dei secoli passati; non ha più valore l'etimo greco "potere del popolo", sostituito da quello di "potere dei media", al contempo luogo della discussione e dell'interazione sociale. Il principio di maggioranza, proprio della democrazia, diviene l'instrumentum regni del potere mediatico: una maggioranza fittizia ricavata dallo share Tv viene presentata secondo i canoni della retorica democratica, e la logica commerciale s'impadronisce della retorica democratica promossa dalla società spettacolare. L'unica possibilità che si rende disponibile per incrementare la democrazia consiste nel ridurre l'asimmetria di conoscenze tra i cittadini."

Because both can purportedly serve this same epistemic function, it has been a matter of much interest to philosophers and theologians how the two are related and thus how the rational agent should treat claims.
